

Working after age 60

SA Ambulance Service Superannuation Scheme (contributory members)

This information sheet provides information for contributory members of the SA Ambulance Service Superannuation Scheme regarding what happens to your super if you continue working after age 60, plus what your options are.

Deferral of retirement on attaining your Normal Retirement Date

For most members of the scheme, age 60 is the defined “age of retirement” in the rules.

Once you attain the “age of retirement”, you will not accrue any further service related defined benefits in the SAAMB Scheme.

All your other accounts (Award and if applicable Voluntary, Bonus and Member) will continue to be invested in the Balanced option.

Therefore, as you approach age 60, you need to consider the options available in dealing with your accrued defined benefit entitlements in the SAAMB Scheme.

The options available on attaining the “age of retirement”:

– You can leave your accrued defined benefit entitlement in the SAAMB Scheme, and accrue no additional service related defined benefits. The already accrued defined benefit will only be adjusted to reflect any future salary adjustment. However, you will continue to receive employer contributions into an accumulation account at the required Superannuation Guarantee (SG) rate.

– You can notify the Trustee (the Super SA Board) that you wish to roll over your accrued entitlements to Triple S and become an active member of Triple S, by requesting, completing and returning the Application to transfer to Triple S over age 60 (contributory Members). When your accrued entitlements are rolled over to Triple S, you can then elect to have the rolled over balance invested in one of the various investment strategies available if you choose to, but noting when you join Triple S your super is invested in the Balanced option.

While a member of Triple S, you will receive employer contributions at the required SG rate.

Before you make a decision in relation to this matter, you should seek professional tax and financial advice from a licensed financial adviser regarding your personal situation and requirements.
